HOLLYWOOD'S BRIGHTEST STARS BRING THE LAUGHS WHEN SIT DOWN COMEDY WITH DAVID STEINBERG
RETURNS ON WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 21

Legendary Comedian/Director/Producer Hosts Original Series Filled with Today's Biggest Comedy Stars Including Jerry Seinfeld, Robin Williams, Roseanne Barr, Jon Stewart, Garry Shandling and Ray Romano

New York, NY, January 18, 2007 – Today's most celebrated and proven comedians sit down with comic icon, director and producer David Steinberg as TV Land kicks off the second season of Sit Down Comedy with David Steinberg on Wednesday, February 21 at 10pm (ET/PT). This six-episode series -- filmed in front of a live studio audience -- premieres with an animated and hilarious conversation with Jerry Seinfeld. Subsequent guests in this one-on-one comedy forum include Robin Williams, Roseanne Barr, Jon Stewart, Garry Shandling and Ray Romano, who entertain with funny stories about their personal lives and careers in entertainment.

Sit Down Comedy with David Steinberg engages classic and contemporary comedians for uproarious conversations in which they reveal personal anecdotes and recount famous comedy bits. From Jerry Seinfeld recalling how his hit series Seinfeld was created in a New York deli to how an appearance on Late Night with David Letterman changed Ray Romano's life forever, to Garry Shandling boxing a rabbi, the series offers a unique freshness as these performers take to the stage to discuss their lives and careers, rather than simply drop by to promote an upcoming project. The result is two comedians in conversation -- an honest look at some of the most renowned comedic performers of our time in a clean "no-spin" zone.

"David's ability to provide a comfortable, spontaneous atmosphere allows TV Land the opportunity to bring such amazing talent to the table," states Sal Maniaci, Senior Vice President, Development and Original Production, TV Land. "These comedians are all Hollywood heavyweights whose trust and respect for David shines through in their honest and refreshing conversations."

The six episode series rollout is as follows:

Wednesday, February 21; 10-10:30 pm (ET/PT)

Jerry Seinfeld and David discuss fatherhood, the greatest thing about being a comedian and his first Tonight Show appearance. Among other topics discussed include how he and Larry David conceived the premise of Seinfeld and the importance of playing the "straight man" in comedy.

Wednesday, February 28; 10-11 pm (ET/PT)

Robin Williams goes one-on-one with David Steinberg and speculates on what Condoleeza Rice is like behind closed doors. Williams recounts how he broke Robert DeNiro's nose and his favorite moment during Comic Relief. Williams also opens up about what he was like in school and talks about his first stand-up experience.

Wednesday, March 7; 10-10:30 pm (ET/PT)

Roseanne Barr sits down with David and discusses the awkward experience of what it is like to have your show bomb and then be stuck in an elevator with angry audience members. Roseanne also discusses what she believes the line is between being mentally ill and Jewish, and shares her spiritual awakening.

Wednesday, March 14; 10-11 pm (ET/PT)

Jon Stewart and David Steinberg reminisce about the first time they worked together and compare what clothes they like to wear to work. Jon discusses his inspiration behind The Daily Show and recalls what his earliest memory is. He also shares how he learned not to fall in love with the audience, how he deals with his fans' criticisms and recounts his experience hosting The Academy Awards.

Wednesday, March 21; 10-10:30 pm (ET/PT)

In this episode, Garry Shandling opens up to David about how he started his comedy writing at UCLA and eventually sold his first script to Sanford and Son. Garry also shares what it was like to host The Tonight Show for the very first time. He recounts how he defended Whoopi Goldberg at a celebrity basketball tournament and the experience of accidentally boxing a rabbi.

Wednesday, March 28; 10-10:30 pm (ET/PT)

Ray Romano and David talk about his job as a futon delivery man in Manhattan -- delivering to Cher and Robert DeNiro -- as well as picking up a return from Larry David. Among other topics discussed include his experience living in his parents' basement until he was 29 and why "vacation sex" is better than "home sex." Romano also explains how Everybody Loves Raymond came about after an appearance on Late Night with David Letterman.

The New York Times has called David Steinberg one of the most original comedians in years, "a cross between Woody Allen and Lenny Bruce." Second only to Bob Hope in appearances on Carson's The Tonight Show, he began his comedy career with Second City and influenced the careers of John Belushi, Bill Murray, John Candy and others who followed him there. Steinberg capped a prolific career as a stand up comedian with four comedy albums and two Grammy nominations. He has also won two Emmys as a writer. Famous for being funny on both sides of the camera, he has directed many critically acclaimed shows, including Friends, Newhart, Seinfeld, Mad About You, and Larry David's Curb Your Enthusiasm for HBO. His work on Seinfeld, Mad About You and Curb Your Enthusiasm earned him several DGA and Emmy awards and nominations.

An accomplished director of over 300 commercials, David has also won virtually every award in advertising, including two Clio Awards and the prestigious Silver Lion Award at the Cannes International Film Festival.

Among the shows he is currently producing or directing are his seventh season on Curb Your Enthusiasm, Campus Ladies and The Dane Cook pilot. His first book, a biblical version of his life entitled "The Book of David," will be published by Simon and Schuster and will be out in June 2007.
